CONFERENCE 2016

7 – 9 September, Te Papa, Wellington
Seeing health and safety in a new light

Organised by the industry for the industry, this conference is great value for everyone with a direct interest in workplace health and safety.

Keynote speakers include:

- Dr Vincent Covello – Founder and Director of the Centre for Risk Communication in New York City – a world authority on risk and change management communication
- Professor Drew Dawson – Director of the Appleton Institute in Adelaide – international expert on managing workplace fatigue – helping define the line between personal and employer responsibilities
- Peter Biggs – Assignment Group CEO – one of Australasia's leading marketing practitioners talks about "buying the why" as the key to transforming health and safety practice in the workplace
- Gordon MacDonald – WorkSafe New Zealand CEO – the regulator looks at the journey from compliance to organisational culture change where "doing it right" is second nature
- Rebecca Macfie – award winning Listener journalist – the author of the definitive book on the Pike River tragedy highlights how Pike is best viewed not as an extraordinary failure, but an ordinary one that all businesses can learn from
- David Tregoweth – Melbourne Water GM Health and Safety – challenges workplace health and safety advisors to be more business savvy and focus on the commercial value of health and safety to businesses, not just regulatory compliance.

Participate in a Business Leaders' panel discussion and an open session on worker engagement and participation, two masterclasses with international keynote speakers and more than 25 presentations inspiring new professionals, new practices and new possibilities.

Attend a special reception at Parliament hosted by Minister for Workplace Relations and Safety, the Hon. Michael Woodhouse.

Take away new ideas, practical knowledge and professional networks.
